Part II

CREATION OF SECURITY INTERESTS

4. Right to create a security interest—(1) Subject to sub-section (2), a customer may create a security interest to secure its own obligation or that of another person in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

(2) A customer shall not create a security interest in exempted property and, if created, such security interest shall be void.

5. Effectiveness of a security interest.—A security interest created in favour of a secured creditor shall be effective against the customer only if —

(a) the customer and the secured creditor have agreed to create a security interest in favour of the secured creditor;

(b) in the case of a pledge and security interests created pursuant to sections 11 and 12, the customer has also given possession of the collateral to the secured creditor;

(c) the secured creditor has given value to the customer; and

(d) the customer has rights in the collateral or the power to transfer rights in the collateral.

6. Security agreement.—(1) The secured creditor and the customer shall enter into a security agreement in terms of sub-section (2) for all security interests other than security interests created pursuant to sections 11 and 12.

(2) A security agreement shall state —

(a) the name and address of the secured creditor and customer;

(b) the obligations secured by the security interest;

(c) a description of the collateral in a manner that reasonably allows its identification; and

(d) the date of its execution.

7. Security interest in proceeds.—(1) A security interest shall extend to the proceeds of the collateral, unless the security agreement provides otherwise.

(2) A security interest in proceeds shall be effective against the customer whether or not the security agreement contains a description of the proceeds.

8. Security interest in commingled goods.—(1) A security interest shall extend to commingled goods, unless the security agreement provides otherwise.

(2) The security interest in the commingled goods shall be limited to the value of the collateral immediately before it became part of such commingled goods.

9. Security interest in after-acquired property.—(1) A security agreement may provide for a security interest in after-acquired property.

(2) Unless otherwise provided in a security agreement, the security interest shall attach to after-acquired property on the acquisition by the customer of rights in the after-acquired property.

10. Future finance.—(1) Subject to sub-section (2), a security interest shall not extend to future finance that has not been committed to be extended to the customer at the time of the creation of security interest, unless the security agreement provides otherwise.

(2) Section 174 of the Contract Act, 1872 (IX of 1872) shall apply in the case of a pledge and a security interest in collateral covered by a title document created pursuant to section 11.

11. Security interest in collateral covered by a title document.—

(1) A security interest may be created in collateral covered by a title document by giving possession to the secured creditor of the title document duly endorsed in favour of such secured creditor or issued in his name.

(2) A security agreement shall not be required where a security interest in collateral covered by a title document is created in accordance with sub-section (1).

Explanation.—Collateral shall be covered by 2 title document where such collateral is in the possession of the issuer of the title document.

12. Security interest in a negotiable instrument.—(1) A security interest may be created in a negotiable instrument by issuing it in the name of the secured creditor or negotiating it in favour of the secured creditor in accordance with the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (XXVI of 1881).

(2) A security agreement shall not be required where a security interest in a negotiable instrument is created in accordance with sub-section (1).

(3) If an negotiable instrument is secured by movable property, then, unless otherwise agreed between the secured creditor and the customer, such security shall stand automatically transferred to and vest in the secured creditor upon creation of the security interest in terms of sub-section (1).

13. Security interest in a right to payment of funds credited in a deposit account.— Where the depository bank is not the secured creditor, creation of a security interest in a right to payment of funds credited in a deposit account shall not bind or otherwise impose any obligation on the depository bank with respect to the security interest unless such security interest has been created with the prior written consent of such depository bank.

Chapter III

TAKING FREE OF SECURITY INTEREST

50. Purchaser taking free of security interest—{(1) A purchaser for value will acquire collateral (other than a negotiable instrument or collateral covered by title document) free of any security interest, where the customer—

(a) _ sells the collateral in ordinary course of business, provided that the customer shall not conduct a bulk sale of collateral without the prior written consent of the secured creditor.

Explanation: Unless otherwise provided in the security agreement, a bulk sale shall mean any transfer of all or major part of the collateral of a customer or of the collateral held at a particular place of business of a customer; or

(b) _ is authorized in writing by the secured creditor to sell the collateral free of the security interest.

(2) A purchaser for value shall not acquire collateral free of security interest under clause (a) of sub-section (1) if, at the time of the acquisition, the purchaser has actual knowledge that the sale of the collateral is prohibited under the security agreement.

51. Rights of a lessee and licensee.—(!) The rights of a lessee and licensee in the collateral are not affected by a security interest where the customer—

(a) _ leases or licenses the collateral in ordinary course of its business; or

(b) is authorized in writing by the secured creditor to lease or license the collateral.

(2) Clause (a) of sub-section (1) shall not apply if, at the time of the conclusion of the lease or licence agreement, the lessee or licensee has actual knowledge that the lease or licence of the collateral is prohibited under the security agreement.

52. Transferee of funds held in a deposit account taking free of security interest—Where the customer has initiated a transfer of funds from a deposit account that is subject to a security interest, the transferee of the funds takes the funds free of any security interest unless the transferee had actual knowledge that the transfer is prohibited under the security agreement.

Part VI
ASSIGNMENT OF RECEIVABLES

53. Assignment of receivables by way of security and absolute.

(1) An assignor may for value assign its rights, title, interests and benefits in receivables to an assignee in writing.

(2) An assignment of receivables may be absolute or by way of security for the performance of the customer's obligations.

(3) Upon an assignment of receivables under sub-section (1), —

(a) the rights and remedies of the assignor, whether by damages or otherwise, shall vest in the assignee; and

(b) the assignee may sue or institute proceedings in respect of the assignment of receivables in his own name without obtaining the assignor's consent to such suit or proceedings and without making him a party thereto.

(4) Notwithstanding section 5 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (IV of 1882), an assignment of receivables may be of future receivables and such future receivables shall vest in the assignee on the acquisition of the receivables by the assignor.

Explanation.—Future receivables are receivables that are generated as a result of a contract that is concluded after the conclusion of the agreement assigning the receivables.

(5) If the receivables to be assigned are secured by movable property, then, unless otherwise agreed between the assignor and assignee, such security shall stand automatically transferred to and vest in the assignee upon assignment.

(6) The rights of an assignee in respect of the assigned receivables are subject to —

(a) all defences and right to set-off arising from the original contract between the account debtor and the assignor that the account debtor could have asserted against the assignor:

Provided that the assignee shall, unless otherwise agreed with the assignor, be entitled to recover from the assignor, any loss suffered by it as a result of the account debtor exercising any such defences and right to set-off; and

(b) any rights to set-off that the account debtor could have asserted against the assignor in respect of claims against the assignor accruing before the account debtor received notice in writing of the assignment.

— (7) Sub-section (6) shall not apply if the account debtor has agreed in writing with the assignor that it shall not assert any defences or right to set-off.

54. Assignment of receivables by way of security—(1) The provisions of Part II, III, V, VII, VIIIf and 1X of this Act shall apply mutatis mutandis to an assignment of receivables by way of security.

(2) An account debtor shall be bound by the terms and conditions of the assignment of receivables by way of security, provided the account debtor has received notice in writing of such assignment in terms of sub-section (3) or has consented to the assignment of receivables in writing.

(3) The notice to be given under sub-section.(2) to the account debtor may be given by the assignor or assignee and shall at the minimum.

(a) state name and address of the assignor;
(b) state name and address of the assignee; and
(c) identify the receivables assigned.

(4) Unless otherwise provided in the security agreement, if the receivables assigned by way of security are received by the assignor or recovered by the assignee, it shall be applied in the following order:

(a) in or towards payment of the cost of such recovery;

(b) _ in or towards the satisfaction of the amount of the security interest;
and

(c) the residual, if any, to the assignor or any other person entitled to receive the same.

55. Absolute assignment of receivables.— (1) An account debtor shall be bound by an absolute assignment and have a duty to make payment to the assignee where the account debtor has received notice in writing of such assignment in terms of sub-section O or has consented to the assignment of receivables in writing.

(2) The notice to be given under sub-section (1) to the account debtor may be given by the assignor or assignee and shall at the minimum—

(a) state name and address of the assignor;

(b) - state name and address of the assignee;

(c) identify the receivables assigned; and

(d) require the account debtor to pay the assignee in accordance with payment instructions stated therein.

(3) If an account debtor has not been given notice, under sub-section (1), of the absolute assignment of receivables, he shall be entitled to make payments to the assignor in respect of the assigned receivables in accordance with the original contract between the account debtor and the assignor and such payment shall fully discharge the account debtor:

Provided that payment made to the assignor in respect of such receivables shall be held in trust for the benefit of the assignee and the assignor shall forthwith make payment of such amount to the assignee or its agent duly authorised in this behalf, unless otherwise agreed between the assignor and assignee.

(4) Nothing in this Act shall prejudice an assignee's right to enforce an absolute assignment of receivables without the intervention of the courts.

56. Applicability of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882
(IV of 1882).— Sections 130, 131, 132 and 134 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (IV of 1882) shall not apply to an assignment of receivables under this Act.

Part VII

ENFORCEMENT OF SECURITY INTERESTS

57. Modes of enforcement.—A secured creditor may, after an occurrence of an event of default, enforce a security interest in accordance with section 58 or 59.

58. Recovery suit—{(1) A secured creditor may enforce a security interest by filing a recovery suit against the customer in the Banking Court.

(2) The provisions of the Recovery Ordinance shall apply mutatis mutandis for the purposes of filing a recovery suit against the customer.

Explanation.—The provisions of the Recovery Ordinance relating to the enforcement of a mortgage over immovable property shall not be applicable.

59. Other enforcement modes.—{(1) A secured creditor may enforce the following security interests without the intervention of the courts:

(a) apledge;

(b) an assignment of receivables by way of security;

(c) a security interest in a negotiable instrument that is perfected by possession;

(d) a security interest in a right to payment of funds credited in a deposit account that is perfected by control;

(e) a security interest in a motor vehicle based on retention of title arrangement; and

(f) a security interest in a title document that is perfected by possession.

(2) At any time after a secured creditor decides to enforce a pledge after an occurrence of an event of default, the secured creditor may give a written notice of demand to the customer in writing and require the customer to satisfy his obligation within fourteen days from the date of receipt of the notice. The notice shall give details of the amount payable by the customer and specify the collateral that may be enforced in the event of the customer failing to satisfy his obligation:

Provided that the secured creditor may dispense with such notice if —{(a) in the reasonable opinion of the secured creditor, the collateral is in danger of being wasted, misappropriated or is perishable; or (b) the amount of finance exceeds ten million rupees and the security agreement provides for such dispensation.

(3) The right to enforce an assignment of receivables by way of security and a security interest in a negotiable instrument in terms of this section includes the right to enforce any security over movable property or a mortgage of immovable property by deposit of title deeds as provided in sub-section (f) of section 58 of the Transfer of Property Act. 1882 (IV of 1882) that secures the payment of the receivables or the negotiable instrument.

(4) Incase o*a security interest in a right to payment of funds credited in a deposit account, the secured creditor shall —

(a) where such secured creditor is the depository bank, be entitled to appropriate and set-off the funds credited in the deposit account against the customer's obligation; or

(b) where such secured creditor is not the depository bank, be entitled to instruct the depository bank to pay the funds credited in the deposit account to or for the benefit of the secured creditor in terms of the control agreement.

(5) Nothing in this Act shall prejudice a secured creditor's right to enforce a security interest without the intervention of the courts under any other law for the time being in force.

60. Enforcement where collateral is in the nature of property attached to immovable property.—{ () If the collateral is in the nature of property attached to immovable property, the secured creditor may, upon enforcement of the security interest in accordance with the provisions of this Part, remove such property and shall reimburse the mortgagee or owner of the immovable property to which such property is attached for the cost of repair of any damage to the immovable property resulting from the removal:

Provided that the secured creditor shall not be required to reimburse the mortgagee or owner of the immovable property for any reduction in value of the immovable property resulting from the removal of the property attached to immovable property.

(2) The secured creditor shall be entitled to recover from the customer any expenses incurred by him for the purposes of removing the property attached to immovable property. :

61. Fresh election of directors on request of the secured creditor—

Notwithstanding anything contained in the Companies Ordinance, 1984 (XLVII of 1984), where a secured creditor acquires twenty percent or more of the voting securities of a company in his own name upon enforcement of a pledge of securities, he may require the company to hold a fresh election of directors in accordance with the procedure laid down in section 178 of the Companies Ordinance, 1984 (XLVII of 1984) within sixty days of the secured creditor requesting the same.

Part VIII

RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS OF SECURED CREDITOR AND CUSTOMER

62. Duties of customer in case of a non-possessory security interest.—(1) A customer shall exercise as much care in the custody, preservation, operation, maintenance, use or other enjoyment or exploitation of collateral in the customer's possession as a man of ordinary prudence would as if the collateral had been free of any security interest and shall not take any action, directly or indirectly, that may waste, misappropriate or otherwise prejudice the value of the collateral.

(2) A customer shall be liable to the secured creditor for any loss or damage to the collateral as a result of a breach of the obligations under sub-section (1).

(3) Subject to the terms of the security agreement, the secured creditor and its agents shall have the right to inspect, value, insure, superintend, take samples and particulars of the collateral and to check any statements, accounts, reports and information pertaining to the collateral.

63. Duties of secured creditor in case of a pledge and security interest in collateral covered by a title document.—Sections 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 173 and 175 of the Contract Act, 1872 (IX of 1872) shall apply mutatis mutandis to a secured creditor in the case of a pledge or a security interest in collateral covered by a title document.

64. Material information from secured creditor.—(1) The customer may send a written demand to the secured creditor to provide material information in respect of a security interest.

(2) A secured creditor shall, upon receiving a written demand under sub-section (1), provide the material information to the customer within fourteen days of receiving the demand.

(3) A secured creditor may charge the customer a reasonable fee for responding to a written demand under sub-section (1) provided that such fee shall not exceed the cost of processing such demand.

(4) For the purposes of this section, material information shall mean—

(a) a copy of the security agreement and any amendments thereto;

(b) a statement in writing of the amount of the aggregate outstanding obligation of the customer secured by the collateral as of the date specified in the written demand under sub-section (1); and

(c) a statement in writing that approves or corrects an itemized list of what the customer believes to be the collateral securing an obligation as of the date specified in the written demand under sub-section (1) and duly authenticated by the customer.

Part IX

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

65. Notice.—(1) A notice or demand required to be given pursuant to any provision in Part IV of this Act may be given to the secured creditor or entity, as applicable, through courier or registered post with acknowledgement due at the address provided in the registered financing statement.

(2) A notice or demand given in accordance with sub-section (1) shall be deemed to have been given and received —

(a) on the day of actual delivery, where the notice is sent by a courier; or

(b) four days after the notice has been posted, where the notice is sent by registered post with acknowledgement due.

(3) The registrar may prescribe by regulations additional modes of providing a notice or demand to the secured creditor or entity, as applicable, pursuant to any provision in Part [V of this Act and matters ancillary thereto.

66. Provisions of insolvency laws not affected—(1) If a customer becomes insolvent, the same rules shall prevail and be observed with regard to the priority of debts upon the distribution of the insolvent customer's estate, the respective rights of the secured and unsecured creditors and to debts provable as are in force for the time being under the applicable insolvency laws:

Provided that a secured creditor shall have the right to stand outside insolvency proceedings and enforce his security interest for the repayment of finance and such right shall, save as is provided in sub-section (2), not be subject to any preferential claim, whether arising before or after the creation of the security interest, by any person or authority.

(2) Preferential claims by any person or authority shall have priority over the claim of a secured creditor having a floating charge, so far as the assets of the customer available for payment of unsecured creditors are insufficient to meet such preferential claims.

Explanation.—For the purposes of sub-section (2), a fixed charge created upon crystallization of a floating charge shall be treated as a floating charge.

67. Protection of action taken in good faith.—No suit, claim or other legal proceedings shall lie against the Registry or the registrar, deputy registrar or officers, staff and other employees of the Registry in respect of anything which is done or omitted to be done in good faith under this Act or any rules and regulations made thereunder.
